

“But, in my mind, the most significant thing that happened during this run of BITS happened at the Washington County Juvenile Center. While this was our smallest audience of the 3-days, I got a strong feeling that these are the young people we can actually help the most.

After Frutelund's presentation to the attentive and well-behaved group, several of the counselors at the Center approached us to thank us for being there. But I could see this meant more to them for some reason than the normal thank you's we get. One counselor said "these kids are usually forgotten about." Another told us "these kids could use a lot more of this type thing." – The Voice
